What will tomorrow be? More importantly, who will you BE in your tomorrows?

—CMSGT of the Air Force JoAnne Bass

It is here! 2021 is here and all the issues and struggles that 2020 subjected us to can now begin to be replaced with the hope that a new year brings. January starts off with New Year's Day and many people go through the ritual of making resolutions. Let's just focus on one. 2021 will be better than 2020! January also recognizes a hero of the Civil Rights Movement on Martin Luther King Day and I suggest that as NCO's and Petty Officers that we take the lead and do something to diffuse so much of the tension thrust upon us last year. The last time I checked, God made all of us and on the battlefield of life, we all bleed red!

I had the pleasure of speaking with many of you as 2020 closed out and I received a lot of encouraging words. This year will provide us the opportunity for a do over. The enlisted force makes up approximately 80% of our entire military. The Non Commissioned Officers Association (NCOA) represents that 80% along with your families. We have some exciting ideas that are churning around in

The heads of your leadership. I want to ask you a question. Do you have a couple hours a month that you could consider contributing to making a difference for the 80%? We are considering putting together a strategic plan that focuses on between 3-5 areas where NCOA can make a difference. Maybe you could help maintain one of the numerous social media outlets available today so that we can reach more people? Maybe you could help us as a regional coordinator that can try to bring a group of the 80% of our members at large together in a virtual chapter? Maybe you could help with submitting information for our chapter newsletter?

Important Dates in January

- Jan. 1 – New Years Day
- Jan. 17 – Persian Gulf War began
- Jan. 18 – Martin Luther King Jr. Day
- Jan. 20 – Inauguration Day
- Jan. 27 – Signing of Vietnam Peace Accord

NCOA is constrained by the limits of our imagination. I have been talking about doing buddy checks to stay connected to our brothers and sisters isolated by COVID. Some of you risked your lives in war to save a buddy and now in peace, isn't it worth a phone call or having a cup of coffee to do the same thing for a struggling service member? There are programs out there that have moved to doing more than raising awareness. I am hopeful that soon, we will have information available to do something that engages people in fighting this horrible trend of veteran suicide.

I challenge you to do something in 2021 to make it better than 2020. It does not have to cost you money, but it may cost you a little time, but I am willing to bet that none of you want to go through another 2020 as long as you live. So, start with a simple thing. Make up your mind that you are going to do something that will make a difference in your family, your chapter, your community, and your nation.

If you have any ideas or suggestions, either contact headquarters or contact me at chairman@ncoausa.org and I can assure you that your leadership will take note.

Upcoming Events

A much better year!

The 2020-2021 National Defense Authorization Act has passed

& the veto overcome.

There was much debate and a threat to veto the NDAA before it even passed. While there may have been some logical reasons to make changes, Congress dug their heels in and passed the $740B bill anyway. The president did veto the bill and in an unprecedented session, the Senate met on New Years Eve and passed the bill following the lead of the House. What will that mean? There will be a small COLA for the troops of 1.3%. That will also impact retirees. The list of presumed diseases connected to Agent Orange exposure was expanded. There was a section authorizing the renaming of military installations named for Confederate heroes. There were provisions addressing improving childcare for active duty families. Sec 578 addresses credentialing of on-line education for our troops. There is also language that places limitations on certain troop withdrawals. This could impact any troops reductions in Afghanistan.

VA resumes overpayment notifications....

The US Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) announced today its nationwide plan to resume mailing notification letters to Veterans for benefit overpayments placed in suspension from April 3 through Jan 1, 2021. The collection of these overpayments was deferred to provide financial relief to Veterans due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

“VA recognizes Veterans and beneficiaries may still experience financial distress from COVID-19, and it will continue to offer enhanced relief options for impacted Veterans,” said VA Secretary Robert Wilkie. “These include extending repayment plans, waivers, compromises and temporary hardship suspensions. Most importantly, the department will pause collections through October 2021 for Veterans who remain in financial hardship and request relief.”

Veterans and beneficiaries with questions regarding benefit overpayments may submit requests or call 800-827-0648. Call volume is generally lower Tuesday – Friday.

For health care co-payment debts, Veterans should contact the Health Resource Center at 866-400-1238 or <https://www.pay.gov> for payments.

Prevention Corner: Tips and Tactics to Avoid Scams

January 2021

FRAUD, SCAMS AND CONS

Frauds, scams, and cons are out there and all around us, but how do we tell if they are legitimate or one of the three.

My friend sent me a text message asking for my assistance and assured me he would pay me back. The text message did not look right to me. Not that he needed assistance, but it stated that he was traveling, and it gave me directions of where to go for his assistance. The locations stated were none that he used in the past or spoke about. The signature block was different from what I receive in past text messages.

I decided to give him a call and not follow through with his request, yet. He advised me that he had been hacked and trying to advise everyone not to respond to the text. He further advised that a couple of people that received the text, did follow through with the request. They are out $300, and the scammer requested an additional $400 to clear it up.

The hackers are very good and have a great deal of knowledge of what they are doing. On a scale of 1 – 50, our knowledge compared to theirs, is approximately 2. Well, how can we determine good from bad if they have so much knowledge? What can we do?

When you look at text, email or internet message, check the spelling and grammar along with the characteristics you know about the person they are trying to represent. Words like immediately, urgent, my last chance and so on, are terms used to get you connected with them fast. Do your due diligence and make a call to the person they are representing and confirm it is above board. Watch if there are any type of links attached to the message. What will happen if you click on the link, you will be redirected to another location and they gotcha.

Use a credit card from your bank that has an alert placed on it. Banks can place alerts on debit and credit cards, so you have a means with which to follow up. Trust your instincts to verify your feeling something is wrong.

You feel embarrassed if you fall for their scam and then, who do I call and how can I get help? Police might take a report for you and that could be the end of it. Not anymore.

I have thirty years in Law Enforcement and helped an enormous number of people in bad situations. You need to put barricades up immediately. I can help with this and follow up with more information and assistance at no cost to you.
